Any other comments:

 First generation learner: First generation learners:

In this study, the first-generation learners would mean those students who are perusing their undergraduate in MLCU, Shillong whose parents have got maximum education upto Class V. In such cases, some children have parents who support their plans for higher education; others are under family pressure to enter the workforce right after high school. Often these students don't know what their options are regarding higher education, and they may have fears about going to college and have misconceptions about college and its costs.
